

HITLER FORBIDS JEWISH SOLDIERS TO WEAR UNIFORMS

Order Issued After German Government Calls Its Ambassador Home

RELATIONS STRAINED

Trade Between the U. S. and Germany Reported At A Standstill

By Pierre J. Huss
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent

BERLIN, Nov. 19.—(INS)—Carrying forward his anti-Jewish measures, Chancellor Adolf Hitler today deprived former German Jewish soldiers of the right to wear German army uniforms.

This order was issued after the German government called its ambassador at Washington, Hans Dieckhoff, back to Berlin to report on President Roosevelt's attitude toward the recent anti-semitic developments in the Reich.

Dispatch of instructions to the envoy to return home was accompanied by renewed Nazi press attacks upon the United States, which included uncomplimentary remarks about "American girlhood."

By Robert G. Nixon

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—(INS)—American diplomatic relations with Nazi Germany, to all practical purposes, were at an end today as a result of nation-wide indignation over Nazi racial and religious persecutions.

America's envoy to Berlin, Hugh R. Wilson, was on the high seas bound for Washington, and an indefinite stay.

German ambassador Hans Heinrich Dieckhoff hurriedly packed his belongings and prepared to depart for his homeland in answer to a summons from Chancellor Adolf Hitler to remain there until the American envoy again resumes his post, it is all.

Officially, there was as yet no rupture of relations. Under diplomatic custom relations continued calm and serene, despite the absence, and impending absence, of the ambassadors. Until one government or the other formally recalls its ambassador, and closes its embassy, diplomatic relations remain intact.

But actually relations between the two countries were strained to a tautness not known since the tense days which preceded America's entry in the World War. Trade with Germany was at a virtual standstill, with the Nazi government occupying a lone position among all world countries of the American trade "blacklist," and shut out from the broad concessions just granted Great Britain in the Anglo-American and Canadian reciprocal trade treaties.

Mounting American indignation over Nazi persecution of German Jews brought a new outburst of official acts and utterances that strained diplomatic relations to the snapping point.

LONDON, Nov. 19.—(INS)—Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain and members of his "inner cabinet" scanned the four-power Munich agreement today in the light of the recent anti-Jewish measures in Germany and the resultant diplomatic strain between the Reich and the United States.

More Than 100 Enjoy A Thanksgiving Party Here

The Thanksgiving Party of The Women of the Moose, Chapter No. 763, held on Thursday night, was a huge success. There were over 100 in attendance, many coming from Trenton, N. J., and Doylestown.

The entertainment was in charge of Mrs. Lillian Toudy, assisted by Mrs. Hoffman, pianist, and consisted of the following students of the music and dancing class of the W. P. A. school: Raymond Pierandozzi and Emma Mirozzi, "trunkers"; Yolanda DeFelice, Gloria Lombardo, Helen Ostrowski, Doris Giberson, Caroline Ludwig, soloists; Marie Yaniro, Edith Marozzi, Florence Nepo and Florence Ludwig joining in with various characteristic dances. Mrs. James Swank entertained with several songs.

A turkey supper was served. There will be no meeting of the Women of the Moose on next Tuesday, owing to the absence of officers.

HOLIDAY SEASON LIGHTS PLANNED FOR TWO BORO'S

Associated Business Men of S. Langhorne to Co-operate With Lions

FOUR NEW MEMBERS

SOUTH LANGHORNE, Nov. 19.—Hopes of having boroughs of South Langhorne and Langhorne lighted up for the holiday season were expressed when Associated Business Men of South Langhorne met at O'Brien's Cafe, this week.

President of the association, John Lappan, called attention to the plan, making a suggestion that the business men co-operate.

President Lappan was authorized to name a committee to work with the Lions' Club in conjunction with the affair. Messrs. Charles O'Brien, Ralph McCormick, Joseph Keating, Esq., and Robert Kelm were named to the committee.

Those added to the roll were Robert Crawford, of the Highway Grill; Raymond Good, of the Modern Maid Hosiery Co.; the People's National Bank of Langhorne, and Jacob Weller, of Oakford.

H. J. Mark, of the membership committee, reported that every application made for membership had been acted on favorably by the committee. The new members were called on for remarks.

There was some discussion as to the use to which buildings vacated by discontinued local industries might be put, but no action was taken.

Treasurer Robert Campbell reported $68.75 in the treasury at the opening of the meeting, and the receipt of $11.45 during the evening.

George Davis, of the committee on signs to be placed along the highways telling of the organization and the town, reported progress.

H. J. Mark reported the progress being made on the plans for the children's party at the Casino on Sunday, December 18th, under the auspices of the association. Entertainment will be provided and gifts furnished.

It being the plan of the organization to alternate meetings among members equipped to entertain the society at dinner, it was decided to hold the December meeting, on the 13th, at the Highway Grill.

Coroner's Jury Orders Driver of Car To Be Held

An Andalusia man, Wilbur Stearner, was ordered held for the next term of the Grand Jury, following a coroner's inquest into the accident in which Mrs. Carolyn B. Smith, Bristol, was fatally injured. The inquest was held yesterday afternoon in the Bristol Municipal Building with Bucks County coroner, Dr. H. Clayton Moyer presiding. He was assisted by deputy coroner, Dr. James P. Lawler.

The verdict of the jury was that inasmuch as there was insufficient evidence to free him that Stearner should be held for the action of the Grand Jury.

Stearner told the jury that he was operating a borrowed car. That the machine apparently worked satisfactorily until just before the accident when he heard a noise and something went wrong. He described how he attempted to guide the car across the highway into the yard of a residence when the accident occurred.

The accident occurred on the Bristol Pike August 13th and Mrs. Smith was fatally injured.

The jury yesterday consisted of Fred Leyden, William K. Fine, Edward Dougherty, John Rich, Curtis Lyons and J. K. Breece.

HARRIS BABY ARRIVES

Mr. and Mrs. James Harris, Croydon, are the parents of a daughter, born Nov. 11th in the private hospital of Dr. J. Fred Wagner. Mrs. Harris was formerly Miss Mary Dreaver, and Mr. Harris is a member of Pennsylvania Motor Police of Oxford Valley barracks.

TO SHOW PICTURES

ANDALUSIA, Nov. 19.—The American Red Cross will present a program at the meeting of Andalusia P. T. A., Monday evening at eight in the school house. The speaker will be Louis Floge, and motion pictures will be shown.

Here and There in Bucks County Towns

The autumn meeting of the Delaware Valley Naturalists' Union, which includes the Bucks County Natural Science Assn. among its group members, will be held this afternoon at three p. m., at the auditorium of the Academy of Natural Sciences, Philadelphia, when George G. Lower, of the Westtown School, will give an illustrated talk on "Audubon Camps." At 5.30 a turkey dinner will be served at Holland's restaurant, and at 8 p. m. Samuel Newman Baxter, president of the Germantown Horticultural Society, will tell of a "Visit to America's Largest Tree," with observations on plants of Mexico, illustrated with lantern slides.

Several phases of welfare were taken into consideration at the meeting of the Newtown New Century Club held at the club home. Mrs. Joseph Lowmes, chairman of welfare of the club, had charge of the program. She introduced Mrs. William Fabian, county chairman of welfare, who in turn presented the speakers of the afternoon.

Mrs. Alvin M. Pratt, Morrisville, county chairman of safety, was the first speaker. Briefly she told of the $50 prize offered by the State Federation of Women's Clubs to the club doing the best work in the line of safety. She also announced that the county federation had offered prizes of $5 and $10 for the clubs doing the best work along the same line.

Speaking of safety on the highways, Mrs. Pratt told of the large number of persons killed on the highways as the result of automobile accidents. Women, she said, have been able to accomplish big things, and they should try to put on a program of highway safety.

Roy Benner, Perkasio businessman and councilman from the Fifth ward for seven years has resigned. His resignation was accepted with regret by the borough fathers. The resignation was in the hands of Council at the regular meeting but was held over in the hope he might reconsider.

Perkasie Borough Council, at an adjourned meeting proposed to property owners in the vicinity of Fifth and Spruce streets, joint legal action to compel Albert Yergler or the subsequent owner of the property in that vicinity under which a private storm sewer was constructed twenty years ago, to remove the obstruction in the sewer.

As a result of the obstruction the entire neighborhood is flooded with every rain of consequence, causing damages to adjoining property, and to Fifth street as well as serious inconveniences to residents.

Residents in the vicinity demanded that Council rebuild the sewer, but upon the advice of Solicitor Robert Grim, Council refused to take such action, because the sewer is wholly upon private property.

But since the flood waters damage a public street the borough becomes a co-sufferer of damages and will unite with other property owners in seeking legal redress.

PAST MASTERS CONDUCT A SESSION OF GRANGE

Dr. H. C. Terry Directs The Meeting in Langhorne This Week

HEAR CURRENT EVENTS

LANGHORNE, Nov. 19.—Entire program of the Middletown Grange in the Friends school house, this week, was conducted by the past masters of the Grange.

Among the past masters attending the meeting were Dr. Harry C. Terry, who directed the program, Edwin E. Ridge, J. Russell Newbold, Jesse G. Webster, Andrew and Jacob Hibbs and Henry C. Pickering. Mr. Pickering is the present master of the local grange, but he previously had served in this capacity. Three other past masters, R. Walker Jackson, Aaron Tomlinson and Joseph J. Edgerton, were unable to attend.

Edwin E. Ridge opened the program. He is a Gold Shield member by virtue of having been affiliated with the grange for 50 or more years, and at present he is the chaplain. Mr. Ridge read a number of stories and jokes.

J. Russell Newbold gave current events as they relate to agriculture. He commented briefly upon the hardihood of the farmers in Connecticut, and told of the replanting of apple and other trees in the flood area of New England. Mr. Newbold also read resolutions prepared by the Somerset County Grange. These related to improvements in agriculture.

Jesse G. Webster, another past master, gave a reading, "Hans and Fritz," and Henry Pickering spoke of the activities of the grange. He defined the term, grange, and reminded the members that at 12.30 o'clock on November 19 the program of the National Grange will be broadcast over the radio from Portland, Ore.

Dr. Terry gave two humorous readings, and Andrew and Jacob Hibbs brought the meeting to a conclusion by putting on an amusing stunt which was much enjoyed.

At the close of the program the past masters served cider and doughnuts.

A very worthwhile community enterprise that had its origin many years ago will be continued this year in the holding of union Thanksgiving services in the Friends' Meeting House on Court street, Newtown, at 8 o'clock Wednesday evening, November 23, under the auspices of several Newtown churches. Representatives of the participating religious groups will share in the program which will open with the invocation, a call to Thanksgiving, followed by the reading of the Thanksgiving proclamation. The program will include Thanksgiving hymns, Scripture reading, an address on the significance of Thanksgiving Day in the lives of men and women today. The service will conclude with a period of silent meditation and a prayer of benediction.

All residents of Newtown and the surrounding communities will receive a cordial welcome. Previous to the service, the committee of Ministry and Counsel of the Bucks Quarterly Meeting of Friends will be held at 6.45 in the meeting house. This will be attended by representatives of Friends Meetings from several parts of the country. They have been invited to join with Newtown in its Thanksgiving service.

Dr. H. Clayton Moyer, Bucks county coroner, addressed a 99% turnout of the Sellersville Kiwanis Club after a turkey banquet in the Washington House. Dr. Moyer came as the guest of Calvin D. Moyer, whose meat dressing establishment at Silverdale he described.

BILLBOARDS ARE NOT IN POPULAR FAVOR

Roadside Improvement Council Urges They Be Regulated In All Communities

MANY AT CONFERENCE

LAHASKA, Nov. 19.—Bucks county was very definitely put on the map this week in New York City during a joint conference on roadside improvement sponsored by The National Roadside Council. The Conservation Committee of The Garden Club of America, The Roadside Development Committee of the National Council of State Garden Clubs and the American Planning and Civic Association.

Mrs. Martha Woolley, of Lahaska, as a member of the American Planning and Civic Association, represented the Bucks County Association—Committee of 76, of which she is executive secretary.

The conference, which lasted two days and was held in the Russell Sage Building, 130 East 22nd Street, will be an annual affair. This was the first time all the representative groups had gotten together to exchange ideas and discuss roadside improvement, zoning and planning.

Practically every State was represented by their State Planning Boards, representatives of State Highway Departments, the Federal Bureau of Highways from Washington, newspaper and magazine editors.

The keynote of the conference, Mrs. Woolley said yesterday upon arrival back home from the conference, was roadside improvement, and it was the unanimous opinion that the best means to bring this about is elimination or limiting of billboards.

Reports made at the conference were that the billboard fight, commonly termed now "the ribbon business," is progressing rapidly, and has been going on for 20 years.

"It was very heartening to see the number of States that have legislated against the billboard nuisance by regulating highway control," Mrs. Woolley declared.

Mrs. Woolley stated that Vermont has taken very definite action where they believe the one way to reach the billboard owners lies through the advertisers and the advertising agencies. In Vermont the various communities arrange for a number of individuals to write protesting letters to each advertiser as soon as his poster or painted advertisement appears, also petitions are sent making similar objection to their advertising in that locality.

"These letters," it was pointed out, "are very disturbing to the advertisers. They know that good will is essential to the sale of goods. The letters do not reflect a friendly attitude. These letters are sent to the advertising agencies which have advised the use of billboards."

"These agencies, finding that the wisdom of their advice is being questioned and realizing that perhaps billboard advertising may have its drawbacks, send the letters to the Outdoor Advertising Association of America."

"The billboard owners realizing that outdoor advertising in a given locality is under fire and that the advertisers and the advertising agencies are becoming skeptical as to its value and are aroused to the necessity of quieting these fears. The only way to do this is to stop the flow of protesting letters by discontinuing the use of posters in that region where they are protested. Thus the billboards become useless and are removed."

Discussion Fails

Berlin, Nov. 19.—Efforts of George Rublee, American member of the Evlan Inter-governmental Refugee Committee to discuss with the Berlin authorities the question of removing German-Jews from the Reich, appeared at a stalemate today.

According to every indication in Berlin, Rublee will "cool his heels" in London for a long time to come if he remains there awaiting the German government's approval of his proposed mission.

Nazi authorities have adopted this attitude on the grounds that his mission is a "political gesture" aimed against the third Reich.

It was understood efforts are afoot in London and Washington to seek a new approach to the Jewish refugee question, possibly on an organizational basis. As an example of such revision, withdrawal of Rublee from the Inter-governmental committee was suggested.

Five Army Fliers Killed

La Grange, Georgia, Nov. 19.—Five army fliers were killed, two others were seriously injured and the fate of the eighth remained unknown today, as a result of the crash of an army bomber in a swamp 7 miles north of here, shortly before last midnight.

The survivors were identified as Second Lieutenant John W. Madre, whose condition was described as critical, and Private Joseph Nanortowich, who is less seriously injured.

There were six other persons who were aboard the plane, known as a B-18 bomber, but only five bodies have been recovered. Four of the known dead were burned to death in the plane, while the fifth body was found a short distance beyond, almost buried in the earth.

The last word from the ill-fated bomber was received by the army air depot at Municipal Airport at Atlanta about 9 o'clock last night.

The bomber passed over Atlanta at that hour, and radioed the air depot that all was well aboard the plane.

Policeman's Shot Kills Boy

Philadelphia, Nov. 19.—Shot by a policeman who mistook his automobile for a stolen car, William Rocks, 17-year-old high school football star, died today in Misericordia Hospital, despite an emergency operation.

Patrolman Richard Crane, charged with the shooting, was remanded in custody of his superior officers. Crane said he fired warning shots at an automobile containing Rock and three companions early today and that a bullet struck the victim in the jaw.

COUPLE WED IN SAINT MARK'S RECTORY HERE

Miss Vivian Rose Veitch Is The Bride of James W. Eagan

ON TRIP TO POCONO MTS.

Miss Vivian Rose Veitch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Veitch, 703 Corson street, and James W. Eagan, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Eagan, Newkirk street, Philadelphia, were united in marriage this morning at 10 o'clock in the rectory of St. Mark's Catholic Church. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. E. Paul Baird in the presence of the immediate families and a few friends.

The couple was attended by Miss Frances Shelly, Jefferson avenue, and Jack Gavegan, 424 Beaver street.

The bride was attractive in a street length dress of teal blue Jersey crepe. The bodice, shirred at the shoulders, featured a V-shape neckline trimmed with gold clips. The sleeves were short and puffed. She wore a draped turban of the same material as her dress, trimmed with face veil, black gloves and suede sandals and a corsage consisting of a white orchid and baby breath.

Miss Shelly was attired in a street length dress of dahlia red tulle crepe fashioned like the bride's dress and trimmed with gold clips and belt-buckle. Her draped turban with face veil matched her dress, and she wore dubonnet gloves and kid slippers, and a corsage composed of an orchid and baby breath.

A reception for the immediate relatives and a few friends was held at the home of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. Eagan left this afternoon for a motor trip to the Pocono Mountains, where they will spend the week-end. They will reside at 423 Radcliffe street. The bride was born in Trenton, N. J., but resided in Bristol most of her life. She graduated from Bristol high school, class of 1937. The groom was born in Philadelphia. He has been residing at 423 Radcliffe street and is employed by Rohm & Haas Chemical Company.

Given Shower By A Group of Her Friends

EXPECT TEN FLOATS IN PARADE MONDAY NIGHT

Ferko String Band of 75 Pieces Engaged For The Big Occasion

LED BY BRISTOL CADETS

The Republican Victory parade, scheduled here for Monday night, is growing hourly in size, and the committee handling the details predict that it will be a big demonstration. The committee met last night and mapped out the details and received an additional number of entries.

Senator-elect Howard I. James will be the marshal, with Burgess Clifford L. Anderson and Dr. J. Fred Wagner as honorary marshals.

The American Legion Cadets will be the first musical organization in the line, and the complete Ferko String Band, of Philadelphia, consisting of 75 pieces, has been engaged for the occasion. This wonderful musical organization will come to Bristol in their full uniforms and make a striking appearance.

Indications point to about 10 floats from the various Republican clubs in this section, and a handsome float of the Bucks County Council of Republican Women.

Delegations from Trexore, Croydon, Edgely and various sections of Bristol Township, and also from Yardley, Southampton and Newportville have stated that they will be in the line of march.

A McIlvaine was named in charge of the flares, and the parade committee will consist of William Dougherty, Frank Hurley, Lawrence Monroe, Francis Lefferts and John V. Turner.

Many contributions have been received and the committee feels greatly indebted to those who are aiding financially.

CROYDON

A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Clark, Wyoming avenue, Thursday evening. The baby has been named Bertha. Mrs. Clark will be remembered as the former Miss Bertha Roberts.

The Ladies Auxiliary of Croydon Manor Boy Scouts, Troop No. 1, held a meeting Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. John Mossbrook. The women wore their uniforms of blue and gold, the Scout colors. The troop presented the committeemen with a 13 merit badge book which has started a merit library for the troop. Refreshments were served.

BRISTOL MAY HAVE TO IMPROVE ITS SEWER FACILITIES

New Four-State Pact Calls For "Complete" Instead of "Primary" Treatment

AGREEMENT ADOPTED

Four States Agree to Lessen Pollution of Delaware River Basin

If the new four-state pact regarding sewage treatment facilities goes into effect, it is likely that considerable changes will have to be made at the Bristol sewer plant. The four states, including Pennsylvania, New York, New Jersey and Delaware, have agreed to lessen the pollution of the Delaware river to the extent that river front communities will have to extend their sewage treatment facilities.

Bristol, placed on Zone 2 according to the announcement made by the Interstate Commission on the Delaware River Basin, now has "primary" treatment facilities and is required to have "complete" facilities.

The announcement that New Jersey, Pennsylvania, New York and Delaware have agreed to joint action for purifying the Delaware River was made through the commission.

An accompanying chart showed Florence, Bristol, Beverly and Riverside are in Zone 2 together with Burlington. All have primary treatment facilities and are "required" to have complete facilities, the chart showed.

"In substance," said the commission, which consists of four members each from the four States, "for the first time the States have jointly agreed to a code of specifications to be followed by the communities and industries of the Delaware River basin with respect to the treatment and disposal of wastes."

"The code will enable the proper State authorities

HISTORY OF SANTA CLAUS

How did the ancient myth of Santa Claus start? Who conceived the idea that this jolly embodiment of good will prances over the tops of the homes with his reindeer, carrying loads of gifts?

The Santa Claus idea appears to trace back to old Saint Nicholas, a highly popular saint of the Roman Catholic and Russian churches. This famous personage was venerated as the patron of young people. The day of his death, just before Christmas, was widely observed. So people gained the idea that the gifts of the holiday came from his favor. The Dutch called him Santa Klaus, from which our name comes.

The parents of former times would welcome such a story. It must have had a quieting effect on children to remind them that Santa Claus was about to make his rounds. As he only gave gifts to good children, the boy who stole the cake and the girl who told the wrong stories could not expect any gifts coming down the chimney.

The modern child is too sophisticated to attach weight to such a legend. If he at first accepts the old tale, his faith soon disappears. He wonders that his parents still attach weight to such an imaginative fable.

Santa Claus in fact may not exist, but his spirit still lives on. Some things that are not true literally, yet come closer to the heart of life than any actual things you can see and touch. Whenever anyone goes out of his way to do things for which he expects no reward, he becomes a Santa Claus for the time being. The world becomes happier for his presence.

ON AND ON FOREVER

Could anyone imagine a woman inventing a machine gun or a new type of poison gas? On the other hand, what of the Amazons? Could anyone imagine a 50-round fight with bare fists between two woman pugilists? On still another hand—assuming the availability of an unlimited number of hands—what of Lady Macbeth? Could anyone imagine a tribe of woman head-hunters engaged in a foray from which they return with the occupants of helpless children? On the other hand, what of the hungry spider which makes a tasty meal of her mate?

The age-old controversy over the comparative deadliness of the sexes was not settled for all time by Rudyard Kipling when he wrote the much-quoted line: "The female of the species is more deadly than the male." At McGill University, two stalwart male students of engineering argued in the affirmative in a debate in which the topic was Kipling's line. But the judges awarded the verdict to two co-eds, who denied the allegation. It is pertinent to note that the majority of the judges were men—or should we say, politely considerate gentlemen.

Of course, this McGill debate is no more conclusive than was Kipling's poetic fancy. The topic is one of those perennials which go on and on forever, furnishing more occasion for amusement than acidity, mayhap just another incident which offers the opportunity to kiss and make up, celebrated most significantly, in all literature in Aristophanes' Lysistrata.

Blessed are the poor. The love they get, if any, isn't mixed up with interest in their pocketbook.

Suckers are not born, but developed by experience. If you are accustomed to believing honest people you will believe a liar.

Billboards Are Not In Popular Favor

The Vermont Association for Bill-board Restriction believes that municipalities should have authority of permitting them to control the location and size of billboards and signs without going through the complications of zoning which are often so difficult.

Vermont believes that its citizens should have legislation for the protection of the property owner whose happiness may be disturbed by the erection of billboards adjacent to his property. Vermont believes that no license for erecting a billboard on a given piece of property should be granted without the permission of neighboring property owners whose peace of mind and well-being might be affected.

Mrs. Woolley said that it was also pointed out at the conference that in recent years, the economic value of the flow of tourists has come to be recognized. In the scramble for this tourist trade, she said, unbridled individualism in many cases has come perilously close to ruining the scenic attractiveness which is the magnet that lures the traveler. Therefore, in order to preserve this economic asset and to foster the growth of tourist business, the New York State Planning Council believes that the time has come to establish a definite public control over the uses of land along the margins of the great highway systems which the State and its counties have provided at public expense.

"I never was so gratified in my own little way to realize the progress that Bucks county has made in planning and zoning after listening to the reports from all the pioneers at this conference," Mrs. Woolley declared. "I was gratified to have been welcomed by people from many states who have heard of our efforts here in Bucks county and asked about the progress being made. They all are looking forward with a great deal of interest to see how soon Bucks county will be planned and zoned for they are of the opinion that, Bucks county zoned, will be a great impetus to other sections of the United States."

Wisconsin, Mrs. Woolley reported, is the outstanding state to take advantage of the County Enabling Act, with 24 counties zoned. Massachusetts, she reported, has the best legislative acts against billboards, while Vermont has the most successful system which has resulted in reducing the number of boards from 30,000 to 10,000 through appeal to the national advertiser.

One of the outstanding keynotes of the convention was the great objection to the political billboard, Virginia. Mrs. Woolley reported, is trying to control highway advertising by taking the matter up with the State Health Department in an effort to control hot dog stands and other undesirable eating places.

An appeal was made at the conference to have everybody read the current issue of "Reader's Digest," which carried an article on billboard advertising and to write to the editor of the magazine a word of appreciation.

It was pointed out at the conference that the Pennsylvania State Highway Department has been erecting cedars instead of snow fences along its highways, although Mrs. Woolley made it known that this section of Bucks county has seen nothing of the sort so far. The saving by planting cedars in a fence construction job that originally costs $700,000, is approximately $300,000, it was reported.

What Bucks county is doing in the way of planning and zoning was reported in detail by Mrs. Woolley, at the conference.

BOGUS MONEY

PARIS—(INS) — American counterfeit money is causing the Paris police many a headache these days and at the same time causing many Americans embarrassment. Large American bills of $50 denominations and upwards have been passed in Paris with the result that Americans presenting bona-fide American money are delayed while bills are carefully checked.

MY LOVE IS NEW by IRIS BENNETT

SYNOPSIS

On a sunny day in June, lovely Constance Darby is driving to her home in Northwood with a song in her heart. Terry Cannon, whom she had loved as long as she could remember, was returning today after an absence of six months. He was assistant athletic coach in an up-state college and would not ask Constance to marry him until he was well established. As she drove along, Constance hoped he would forget all that, remembering only that he loved her, and propose now. Stopping for gas, Constance meets suave, sophisticated Gordon Keith, Northwood's favorite son, who won fame as a newspaper correspondent and radio commentator in the big city. His car has broken down and she gives him a lift to the home of the wealthy, aristocratic Howards. Ostensibly, Gordon was returning home to write a book. What he refrained from mentioning was that he had been involved in a scandal in New York and was also broke. Upon learning Constance is in need of work, Gordon hires her as his secretary. This beautiful, blonde girl attracted him greatly. That night Terry arrives. He and Constance would have preferred being by themselves but they agree to go dancing with Rosalind, Constance's younger sister, and her beau, Bill Stanton. Otherwise Matthew Darby would have objected to Constance going. The latter, a rebellious 18-year-old, envies rich girls like Avis Bailey who live in "The Hills." She vows to get there some day. Standing with her hand in Terry's, Constance thought, "This is my whole world, my family and Terry. They are all I ever wanted."

CHAPTER IV

Bill and Rosalind rode in the rumble seat of Terry's roadster. Up front Terry leaned forward and kissed Constance's cool forehead lightly. "My sweet girl," he said. "My girl."

He wished that he could tell her all that he felt for her. But how could a lanky young man of six feet speak of his strong feelings and not sound ridiculously sentimental? Some men could, men practiced in making pretty speeches for every pretty girl, men who had had many girls. But the pretty speeches that came to him stuck in his throat. Constance deserved them. She deserved much more than he. He would be able to give her, driving home today the motor in his car had seemed to say her name, "Constance—Constance" all the way home. For he had loved her for as long as he remembered, had loved the little girl with pigtail curls the color of corn flowers, and then the shy girl of sixteen who had whispered her love that night on the river and now the radiant Constance of twenty.

At the university and on trips to New York he had met many girls whom he had found chic and amusing. But, nevertheless, he'd often thought, "Constance is prettier than any girl here, a better dancer, and more fun. She can run rings around these girls." His sweet girl, his only girl! The large photograph of her on his desk was well known at the university. Often when alone he spoke to it. Strangers always asked, "Who is that beautiful girl, Terry?" He always said, "That's my girl."

Cars were parked outside the Red Slipper in every conceivable parking position. Harsh music issued from the green-shingled building illuminated by a red electric sign in the shape of a woman's high-heeled slipper. Inside a villainous-looking waiter in a none-too-clean white coat led the four to a table through the dancing throng.

Bill and Rosalind danced. Terry, frowning, looked across the table at Constance. "Why did I let her talk me into bringing you here? This is no place for us on my first night home. We'll stick around awhile and see if Rosalind behaves herself and then go for a ride."

A few minutes later she saw Rosalind "cut in" by Van Howard. Frowning, she leaned forward. Why was Van Howard at the Red Slipper on Saturday night? Why wasn't he at the club with Avis Bailey and the Hills crowd? She saw Rosalind's pretty face bewitched as she looked up at him. Tall and blonde and conspicuously well dressed, he was probably the best dancer on the crowded floor.

Terry asked, "That's Van Howard, isn't it?"

Constance felt a prick of anger.

"Yes. Look how thrilled Rosalind is to be dancing with him. And he knows it! He knows that every girl here will be thrilled if he asks her to dance. Every girl except me."

Strangers always asked, "Who is that beautiful girl, Terry?"

When the music ended, she saw Rosalind tuck her arm through Van's and lead him to the table. Introductions followed. Terry shook Van's hand vigorously, thinking, "The last time we met, old boy, I pushed your face in. That was the day the public high school played football against the private school. There was a general row but we won."

The music began again and Van and Rosalind drifted again into the dancing throng.

Terry said, "Let's go, Constance. I won't ask you to dance in this mob."

"I don't know whether or not I should leave Rosalind. I don't like it, Terry, her and Van Howard."

But she left with him and soon the roadster was headed through the moonlight to the beach. Hand in hand they walked down the bank to the sand. Constance saw their shadows on the sand. Terry's tall and straight, hers with legs hair blowing. A deep happiness that obliterated the worried thought of Rosalind with Van Howard and the twilight encounter with Gordon Keith filled her. May Terry's presence always fill her with feelings of thrilling excitement and safety!

Gently Terry took her close and passionately kissed her. It was a moment he had anticipated for weeks—he and Constance on the lonely white beach with silver moonlight around them, her face tilted up, her eyes in love with him. "I've waited a long time for this,"

he said. "Every time I see you, it's new, Constance. It never gets stale. It never will. But you won't like what I've got to tell you. You thought I was coming home for the summer. I'd planned to but a fellow from school opened a camp for boys and offered me the job of teaching about seventy-five kids how to swim. I accepted because the money looked good. Money is the only obstacle in our way. You hate it. So do I. But it's important. I won't offer you less than what you've been accustomed to." His firm mouth broke into the swift smile again. "I won't ask you to marry me now because that would mean you'd have no fun all summer and stop seeing other boys. But in October. . . ."

"You know it'll be 'yes' in October, Terry?" October! Married to Terry in her favorite month!

"I don't deserve you. You should have. . . ."

"Don't say it. I should have you. You're all I ever wanted, Terry, ever since I was a little girl."

He smiled. "You're all I ever wanted since I carved your initials and mine on a tree on the lawn. Look at them sometime. They're carved inside a heart and it's the craziest looking heart you've ever seen! I was the guy who sent you all those anonymous Valentines."

"You! I thought Tommy Keene sent them!"

"I told my mother tonight. As if she didn't know you're the only girl for me! Do you know what she said? 'I'd cry if you were telling me you were going to marry any girl except Constance. I won't cry when you marry her.' We'll have a great life. Not much money but fun. In a university town you never get stale. We'll go to college dances and run up to New York for big weekends. And if I'm ever a famous coach. . . ."

She laughed quietly. "Then I'll be the wife of a famous coach!" She laid her hand on his shoulder. "I don't want to go now, Terry. I'd like to stay right here until October. But Rosalind gets more difficult all the time. She and Father quarrel terribly. She isn't satisfied with anything he and Mother do for her. And Van Howard is the one boy she should never have met."

ON THE SCREENS

BRISTOL

The underlying principles of the American Legion—so often blindly applauded by some of us and misunderstood by others—have seldom before been set forth so clearly and with such sincerity as in the new screen drama, "Sons of the Legion," which Paramount presented to local audiences last night at the Bristol Theatre.

In a moving story of the problems encountered by American Legionnaires in a typical American city when they decide to form their sons into a junior organization, "Sons of the Legion" shows what the effect of the American ideals of liberalism, tolerance and democracy can be on those members of the community who have not shared in the material advantages of the others. This powerful idea is splendidly set forth by a cast of experts, headed by Donald O'Connor, the boy star of Bing Crosby's recent "Sing Your Sinners." Lynne Overman, Elizabeth Patterson, Billy Lee and more than a dozen others.

When the Legionnaires decide to form the "Sons of the Legion" in their home town, they are met by two unexpected problems—the unwillingness of an ex-service man, Overman, to permit his sons to join, and the question of whether they should take in a local "boy gangster," played by O'Connor. Overman stubbornly clings to his position, not letting any one know he was dishonorably discharged from the army, and the organization welcomes the ragamuffin into its ranks.

Bob Burns fans, who have long been demanding that their favorite star be cast in a big dramatic role and take his deserved place alongside the great portrayals of native American characters, will see their wish come true in Burns' new picture, "The Arkansas Traveler," which Paramount will present to local movie goers Sunday at the Bristol Theatre.

Casting aside the bazooka and musical comedy wisecracks, which started him on the pathto screen fame, Burns now portrays the most colorful character of his career—a happy-go-lucky wandering printer who edits a country newspaper in order to help a lady in distress and ends up by overturning a powerful political regime. While his new role differs from all others Burns has played; it is reminiscent of the homely backwoodsman he portrayed in last season's "Wells Fargo."

to the mountains with a few followers, among them a young ex-Ranger dismissed for brawling. O'Brien, in the role of a captain of Rangers, is sent after her, but his former associate denounces him and has him sentenced to death.

The advent of any Jones Family picture is a signal for considerable rejoicing hereabouts. And from all advance reports it would seem that "Safety In Numbers," their latest for 20th Century-Fox, will more than do its share in living up to the industry's current slogan, "Motion Pictures Are Your Best Entertainment."

BRISTOL HIGH ELEVEN ROUTS NEWTOWN; FINAL SCORE, 42 TO 0

Cardinal and Gray Completely Overpowers Indians in Grid Battle Here

BRISTOL KEEPS AT TOP

Bristol Offensive Attack Was One Which Could Not Be Denied

Completely overpowering the injury-riddled Newtown Indians, the Cardinal and Gray gridders of Bristol High ran rough-shod over the weakened invaders by the lopsided score of 42-0 in a Lower Bucks conference tilt here yesterday afternoon.

The triumph was the most one-sided decision the local outfit has scored since Bristol rolled up a score of 40-0 against Quakertown two years ago, and their 46-6 trouncing of North Coventry previous to the Quakertown rout the same season.

As a result of the triumph, coach Steve Juenger's boys remained at the top of the Lower Bucks conference ladder, keeping pace with the victorious Bulldogs of Morrisville, who easily downed Langhorne, 26-0.

In spite of the fact, the Indians were severely handicapped by the absence of several of their stars due to injuries, and the loss of others continually throughout the contest via the same method, the Cards displayed an offensive attack that could not be denied. They clicked on all sides in their decisive victory and in each department of the game, they showed up well with their running, blocking and passing all playing a role in the triumph.

Bristol displayed an amazing offensive attack that could not be stopped as they rolled up their highest score of the current season by more than double their previous high score of 29-0 over Langhorne midway in the campaign.

Beside the lopsided score, injuries marred the game from a Newtown standpoint with practically the entire team being hurt some time or other in the contest. However, Jack Nolan and Al Driver were the most seriously injured with the former perhaps being laid up for the big Langhorne game next week. Bud Collier, Bristol star quarterback, also suffered a bad shoulder injury and he too may miss the big game on Thanksgiving Day against Morrisville. If he does, it will be a jolt to Bristol's chances to win the title this year.

Captain Jack Nolan and Bill Wiggins played a whale of a ball game for the losers' cause during the time they were in there in which they made approximately 75% or more of the tackles on the defense. Danny DiMido and Wilbur Van Lente stood out above all others in Bristol's glorious victory yesterday.

ANDALUSIA ELEVEN TO MEET SOUTH LANGHORNE

Eyes of the football fans of Lower Bucks County will be focused on three games scheduled in this vicinity tomorrow afternoon. On Leedom's field, the Bristol Rees will meet the Mannheim A. A. eleven, of Lancaster county. Mitchell's field, Andalusia, will see Joe Diamanti's aggregation tackle the South Langhorne Aces, while at Burlington, St. Ann's A. A. will clash with the eleven representing that borough.

About the most important tilt of the three is the fracas between Andalusia and South Langhorne. The Aces are going against the Green Wave with an unblemished record in eight games. They have neither been tied, defeated nor scored upon.

The boys from the City Line haven't been beaten this season (except for one scholastic encounter), although they have been tied by St. Ann's A. A. and the Yardley team of Mike Derrick. Yardley ended in a 6-6 tie, while the tilt with Dougherty's boys was scoreless.

Coach Diamanti will probably use his same lineup of: Junghans, Cunningham, Trummer, Rankin, Lange, Carter, Roberts, Chapman, Farina, W. Lange, Schwartz and Efling. In Langhorne's lineup will be: McGrath, Miller, Vitale, Ehyling, Morasch, Keen, Dunlap, Schemely, Black, Daugherty, Miller, Edys and Frying.

In playing Burlington St. Ann's will attempt to avenge a 27-6 beating handed to them by the Jerseyites last season. The boys of Dominick Fandel have practically the same lineup as last year and are out to hand the

MANHEIM STEAMROLLERS TO OPPOSE RECREATION

Tomorrow the strong Manheim Steamrollers of Lancaster County will play the Bristol Rees on Leedom's field at 2:30 p. m. This Manheim team comes here this week-end with one of the best records in the semi-pro ranks, winning 10; losing one game; having such outstanding players in their line-up as Ben Sweeten and Harry Price, two former Dickinson College stars, as their key men. It is the policy of the local management to give Bristol first class ball and those who saw last week's game with Trenton Eagles went home perfectly satisfied. They got their moneys worth. This game on Sunday will be broadcast play by play, sponsored by Wetherill Co. The Rees have played the strongest schedule in Bucks county. Not any club can boast of such a schedule. The game will start at 2:30 sharp.

HAVE BEEN ILL

Miss Mildred Busso, 902 Warren street, has been confined to her home with acute bronchitis for the past two weeks. Mrs. Busso is able to be at work again following two weeks' illness with pneumonia.

MORRISVILLE EASILY DOWNS LANGHORNE

LANGHORNE, Nov. 19.—Held scoreless through the first period, the Morrisville Bulldogs broke loose in the second chapter to count three times and with another tally in the final session, they easily downed the Langhorne Redskins in a Lower Bucks conference tilt here yesterday afternoon, 26-0.

The Bulldogs opened an offensive attack at the conclusion of the second period which carried into the second chapter when the visitors scored with Art Baehr, big plunging fullback, cracking off tackle for 3 yards to score the first six pointer of the afternoon. Andy Gavin's place kick attempt for the extra point went wide of its mark, but the invaders led, 6-0.

A short time later, Jim Yeager, star halfback, skirted his own left end on a wide sweep to go over from the ten yard line for the second counter and when Andy Gavin, ace blocking back, placed kicked the added tally, the Bulldogs increased their advantage to 12-0. Before the period finally ended, coach John Hoffman's proteges had chalked up another touchdown when Jim Yeager tossed a 20 yard pass into the end zone where Bill Provost grabbed it to score. An attempted pass to count the single counter failed and so the Bulldogs assumed a 19-0 half-time margin.

A sustained drive of 70 yards resulted in Morrisville's final touchdown in the last period to give the Blue and Gold its ultimate victory margin. Passes by Jim Yeager were the leading factor in this march by the invaders with Yeager himself logging the leather over the goal line from the two yard stripe. Art Baehr hit the line for the extra point, making the final score read, 26-0.

Hitler Forbids Jewish Soldiers To Wear Uniforms

There were significant reports that Chamberlain may prepare the British public for possible modification of his peace policy as a result of the developments in Germany and that he will warn Chancellor Hitler that European appeasement efforts are being endangered.

During the next few days, it was stated, British cabinet ministers will make various public addresses criticizing the anti-Jewish measures in Germany and casting doubts upon the value of the Munich peace agreement.

The ministers are expected to declare that hopes for European appeasement through the amputation of Czechoslovakia seem to be fading in view of the anti-Jewish measures and the German press attacks upon Britain.
